TONGUES NOT BRIDLED

Women and Men Punished for Using Profane Language.

SOME VERY POOR EXCUSES

Policeman Mohl Was Successful in Disposing of His Jail Clients—Girls Stood on the Corner, Brewing Mischief—Most of the Trouble Was Caused by the Females.

The fair sex was largely represented in Judge Kimball's dock this morning, there being fully as many women as men charged with violating the District regulations. Most of their misdemeanors were committed while their male friends were along, but in some cases they were the prime cause of trouble.

Ella Parkinson, Alice Lee, William Webster, James Despret and Robert Allen were arrested in a house in Madison alley by Policeman Audridge and charged with using profane and indecent language. The subject under discussion was the Edmunds law, and their argument grew so boisterous so the officer testified, that he heard it out in the alley. The language in which it was conducted was not of the choicest, and he decided that they ought to be arrested. John Hogan, a colored boy who was in the house at the time of the raid, also testified, but he heard no profanity and said the conversation was carried on in ordinary tone of voice.

"Did you hear what the people were talking about?" asked Lawyer Jones, who, with Mr. Moss, represented the defendants.

"Yes, sir, dey wuz talkin' 'bout de Utah act."

"Were they using any profane or indecent language?"

"No, sir, I didn't hear none."

The officers could not say exactly who used the language with which the defendants stood charged, and Judge Kimball dismissed the case.

MORE OF MOHL'S CONSTITUENTS. Thomas and Catherine Johnson, a couple of Policeman John Mohl's constituents, were arrested by that officer, and charged with disorderly conduct. The difficulty was in the nature of a family row in which Thomas was the aggressor. Judge Kimball fined him $5 and dismissed the case against the woman.

Martha Brown, Annie Chapman, Flora Moore, William Brown, John Adams, William Brown, and May Simms were arrested by Policemen Laurens and Miller, charged with profane and indecent language. This case was similar to that made by Policeman Audridge.

The officers testified that they heard profanity and went around to the rear of the house. In the back yard the two men were fighting and swearing, and two more were making a noise inside. One of them got away. The women were also more or less belittled.

"Come around here, Brown, and tell me about this," said the judge.

"Twain't no cussin' an' swearin' in de house 'tall, judge," said Brown after he took the stand.

Kidnoid said he had been to hear preaching from the Gospel wagon and had just returned to his home when the raid was made. The rest had excuses, mostly rather poor ones, and Judge Kimball fined the men $5 each and discharged the women.

STANDING ON THE CORNER. Annie Brackett, Nannie Clayton and Celia Snow were charged by Detective Helan and Policemen Hollinger and McCort, of the First precinct, with disorderly conduct.

"We saw these three girls standing on the corner of Twelfth and Pennsylvania avenue, your honor, about to engage in a fight," said Helan. "When we got up to them Nannie Clayton had an oyster shell in her hand, but dropped it when I took hold of her. Annie Brackett tried to run away."

"They made stirrin' remarks about me, and den one ob 'em struck me. When she struck me fas' it was only nateral dat I strike her back."

Both the other girls, who were nice looking and apparently respectable, testified that Annie had followed them up the Avenue from Sixth street, and when they reached Twelfth picked up an oyster shell, which she threw at Nannie. Judge Kimball fined Annie Brackett $5, took the personal bonds of Nannie, and let Celia off.

HIS THIRD OFFENSE. Policeman Espey, of the Fourth precinct, made a trip to court this time with William Webster, one of the old-timers in the rag line.

"Webster came into the station house last night for the third time within the last 48 hours, and asked for a lodging, judge," said he. "He has no home, nothing to do, and I thought the best thing to do was to lock him up."

"He's been here a good many times," remarked the court. "Do you want to say anything about this?"

"Well, say it."

"O' wint into 't' station house lasht night an' asked for lodgin'. Th' mon said he'd lock me up, an' 'begorra he did lock me up."

"What are you doing here anyhow?"

"O' jist him to town for a wake or so."

"Where do you live?"

"O' jist no home, sir."

"Well, I'll give you a home for thirty days, anyhow."

Release of the Horna Explained. The release of the steamer Horna, seized at Kingston, Jamaica, the other day, for landing filibusters in Cuba, is thus explained. The vessel sails under the Danish flag, and as the offense charged against her was committed partly in the United States and partly in Cuban waters, the officials at Kingston concluded they had no jurisdiction and released her.

WALLER'S TRIAL WAS FAIR

State Department Has So Decided the Famous Case.

MR. OLNEY READ THE PAPERS

It Is Stated That He Has So Informed Mrs. Waller, But She Denies the Report—Her Husband Can Be Released If He Will Waive Claim for Indemnity.

The termination of the Waller case appears to be near at hand. Mrs. Waller, the wife of the imprisoned consul, has been notified by the State Department that the government has concluded that the court martial which convicted her husband was regular, and that there was nothing whatever crooked in the proceedings. The preliminary to his immediate release from the French prison is a disclaimer from him or his wife of any intention to claim an indemnity for the arrest and incarceration.

If Waller desires an unconditional release he can get it. Already intimations have come from France that if he will agree to be released and not to claim a pecuniary indemnity he will be immediately given his liberty.

The French government, however, declines to entertain any proposition to cover as to the payment of an indemnity. The release of Waller can only be secured by the Secretary of State asking that it be done as an act of courtesy to the United States.

The proceedings of the most famous consular trial which convicted Waller in Madagascar, and which, it is claimed, by his friends, was irregular and did not give Waller a fair trial, have been in the possession of the State Department for the past two weeks, and a careful study of the papers by Mr. Olney has satisfied him that Waller was legally and fairly tried, and that he has nothing to expect except release from prison.

CONSULT WALLER'S WISH. Mr. Olney has communicated these facts to Mrs. Waller and her attorneys in this city, with the suggestion that it would be advisable to consult Mr. Waller's wish in the matter. The attorneys are in favor of accepting the terms proposed by the Secretary in order to secure the release of Waller, but Mrs. Waller is not willing to do this, and hangs out for a financial recompense from the French government.

Mrs. Waller insists that her husband shall not be consulted about the matter by the State Department, claiming that in his sick and helpless condition he would be willing to accept anything that would secure his liberty.

The State Department cannot accept the financial terms of Mrs. Waller, and Waller will be released at her request until it hears from Mrs. Waller. She insists that she will protest against such action by the Secretary of State, and that if an official communication is sent to Waller she will request that he be allowed to send a letter with it, advising him not to accept the terms.

It is quite probable that Mrs. Waller will be given a reasonable length of time to submit her mind. In the event that she does the chance to accept the proposition submitted to her, it is evident that Secretary Olney will notify the American ambassador, Mr. Eustis, to accept Waller's release unconditionally, and then in the language of the State Department "the incident will be considered closed."

The record of the court, which it has been believed was refused this morning, reached her about three weeks ago, and since that time the official translator of the State Department has been at work making translations for the use of the Secretary.

ACCEPTED AS TRUTHFUL. It has been said that the testimony has been dictated by the French authorities in order to suit their own purpose and defeat any demand the United States may make for an indemnity. The State Department, however, accepted the record as a truthful version of the sitting of the court, and since the Waller case has been given every opportunity to be heard.

It is understood that the conduct of Consul Waller, who succeeded Waller in Madagascar, has been under investigation by the State Department, but as yet nothing has transpired to show that he erred in any way regarding the Waller incident.

Mrs. Waller is very bitter toward this government, and it is said she has threatened to file charges against him with the department. She refused to say whether she would or not today when seen by The Times.

There is a movement on foot among the friends of the Waller family to get up a testimonial or benefit for the family. Efforts are now being made to secure a theater in which to hold it, and some of the most prominent people in the city are interested in the movement. A great deal of local talk has been going on since the Waller case, but as yet nothing has transpired to show that he erred in any way regarding the Waller incident.
